If the Data Subject has submitted his/her request electronically, then the requested information should be provided in a widely used electronic format, except if the Data Subject requests otherwise.

Prior to the fulfillment of the Data Subject's request, the Data Controller may ask the Data Subject to clarify the request by stating the specific information or data processing activity in which he/she is interested.

In case the Data Subject's right of access – as specified in this section – infringes upon others' rights and freedoms, especially the trade secrets or intellectual property of others, then the Data Controller may deny the Data Subject's request to the degree to which it is reasonable and necessary.

If the Data Subject requests the above-mentioned information in more than one copies, the Data Controller may charge an appropriate and reasonable fee for the administrative costs of preparing multiple copies.

If the personal data specified in the Data Subject's request is not processed by the Data Controller, the Data Controller is obligated to inform the Data Subject of this in writing.

4.2 The Right to Rectification

The Data Subject has the right to request the rectification or correction of his/her personal data. If the Data Subject's personal data are incomplete, he/she is entitled to make additions.

During the practice of his/her right to rectification/addition, the Data Subject is obligated to specifically point out the incomplete or incorrect data and to provide precise and complete information to the Data Controller. In justified cases, the Data Controller is entitled to ask the Data Subject to properly verify the modified data with an official document.

The Data Subject will rectify and complete his/her personal data without any unjustified delays.

The Data Controller, following the fulfillment of the Data Subject's request through which he/she exercises his/her right to rectification, shall inform the parties to whom the Data Controller has forwarded the Data Subject's personal data without delay, except if this is impossible or if it would require an unreasonable amount of effort from the Data Controller. The Data Controller informs the Data Subject of these recipients if the latter requests it.

4.3 The Right to Erasure („the right to be forgotten“)

The Data Subject is entitled to request the Data Controller to delete his/her personal data without undue delay if one of the following justifications apply:

- (i) The data specified by the Data Subject are not necessary for the purpose for which the Data Controller has collected them or the Data Controller used the data in a different manner,

- (iii) The Data Subject objects to data processing activities that are based on the legitimate interests of the Data Controller and there is no compelling legal reason which would prioritize the Data Controller's interests over the interests, rights, and freedoms of the Data Subject or which relate to the establishment, exercise or defense of legal claims,

- (iv) The Data Controller has processed the personal data unlawfully,
- (v) The data processed by the Data Controller needs to be deleted in order to fulfill the legal obligations mandated by EU laws or national laws applicable to the Data Controller,

The Data Subject is obligated to submit his/her request for the erasure of data in written form and he/she must state the reason for the deletion of each piece of personal information.

If the Data Controller accepts the Data Subject's request for erasure, the Data Controller will delete the processed personal data from every database and inform the Data Subject of this in a proper manner.

In case the Data Controller is obligated to delete the Data Subject's personal data, the Data Controller shall take all reasonable steps – including the application of technical procedures – to inform other data processors, who gained access to the Data Subject's personal data through the Data Controller, about the obligatory deletion of this data. The Data Controller must notify the other data processors that the Data Subject has initiated the deletion of links leading to his/her personal data and the deletion of all the copies that exist of his/her personal data.

The Data Controller, following the fulfillment of the Data Subject's request through which he/she exercises his/her right to erasure, shall inform the parties to whom the Data Controller has forwarded the Data Subject's personal data without delay, except if this is impossible or if it would require an unreasonable amount of effort from the Data Controller. The Data Controller informs the Data Subject of these recipients if the latter requests it.

The Data Controller is not obligated to erase personal data if the data processing is necessitated by one of the following reasons:

- (i) for exercising the right of freedom of expression and information,
- (ii) for compliance with a legal obligation which requires processing by Union or Hungarian law to which the controller is subject,
- (iii) for the performance of a task carried out in the public interest or in the exercise of official authority vested in the controller,
- (iv) for reasons of public interest in the area of public health,
- (v) for archiving purposes in the public interest, scientific or historical research purposes or statistical purposes in so far as the enforcement of the Data

Subject's right to be forgotten is likely to render impossible or seriously impair the achievement of the objectives of that processing,

(vi) for the establishment, exercise or defense of legal claims

4.4 Right to Restriction of Processing

The Data Subject shall have the right to obtain from the Data Controller restriction of processing where one of the following justifications apply:

- (i) the accuracy of the personal data is contested by the Data Subject, for a period enabling the Data Controller to verify the accuracy of the personal data,
- (ii) the data processing is unlawful and the Data Subject opposes the erasure of the personal data and requests the restriction of their use instead,
- (iii) the Data Controller no longer needs the personal data for the purposes of the processing, but they are required by the Data Subject for the establishment, exercise or defense of legal claims,
- (iv) The Data Subject objects to data processing activities that are based on the legitimate interests of the Data Controller and there is no compelling legal reason which would prioritize the Data Controller's interests over the interests, rights, and freedoms of the Data Subject or which relate to the establishment, exercise or defense of legal claims; in this case, the restriction remains in force until it is determined whether the legitimate grounds of the Data Controller override those of the Data Subject.

Where data processing has been restricted, such personal data shall, with the exception of storage, only be processed with the Data Subject's consent or for the establishment, exercise or defense of legal claims or for the protection of the rights of another natural or legal person or for reasons of important public interest of the Union or of a Member State.

A Data Subject who has obtained restriction of processing shall be informed by the Data Controller before the restriction of processing is lifted.

The Data Controller, following the fulfillment of the Data Subject's request through which he/she exercises his/her right to restriction of processing, shall inform the parties to whom the Data Controller has forwarded the Data Subject's personal data without delay, except if this is impossible or if it would require an unreasonable amount of effort from the Data Controller. The Data Controller informs the Data Subject of these recipients if the latter requests it.

4.5 The Right to Object

Since the Data Controller does not carry out any data processing for reasons of public interest, does not possess any official authority, does not conduct scientific or historic research, and does not process data for statistical purposes, in the Data Controller's case the exercise of the Data Subject's right to object is only applicable in connection with data processing practices based on legitimate interests.

If the personal data of the Data Subjects is processed on the basis of legitimate interests, the exercise of the Data Subjects' right to be properly informed in connection with the data processing and to object against the data processing must be ensured. At the latest at the time of the first communication with the Data Subject, the right referred to above shall be explicitly brought to the attention of the Data Subject.

Based on the above, the Data Subject shall have the right to object, on grounds relating to his or her particular situation, at any time to processing of personal data concerning him or her and in such cases the Data Controller shall no longer process the personal data, unless:

- (i) the Data Controller demonstrates compelling legitimate grounds for the processing which override the interests, rights and freedoms of the Data Subject, or
- (ii) or the data processing is related to the establishment, exercise or defence of the Data Controller's legal claims.

4.5.1 The Right to Object in Case of Direct Marketing

Where personal data are processed for direct marketing purposes, the Data Subject shall have the right to object at any time to processing of personal data concerning him or her for such marketing. However, in contrast to data processing which is conducted on a legitimate basis, in cases where personal data are processed for direct marketing purposes, the Data Controller does not have the option to deliberate whether the data processing could continue despite the Data Subject's objection.

Where the data subject objects to processing for direct marketing purposes, the personal data shall no longer be processed for such purpose.

4.6 The Right to Data Portability

The Data Subject shall have the right to receive the personal data concerning him or her, which he or she has provided to the Data Controller, in a structured, commonly used and machine-readable format and have the right to transmit those data to another controller without hindrance from the data controller to which the personal data have been provided.

The right to data portability may be practiced in connection with personal data which the Data Subject has provided to the Data Controller, where:

- (i) the data processing is based (i) on the consent of the Data Subject or on a legally valid contract and

(ii) the data processing is carried out by automated means.

In exercising his or her right to data portability, the Data Subject shall have the right to have the personal data transmitted directly from one data controller to another, where technically feasible. The right to data portability – as described in this section – does not create an obligation for data controllers to introduce or maintain data processing systems which are technically compatible with each other.

In order to fulfill its obligations regarding data portability, the Data Controller must provide storage media to the Data Subject free of charge.

In case the Data Subject's right to data portability infringes upon others' rights and freedoms, especially the trade secrets or intellectual property of others, then the Data Controller may deny the Data Subject's request to the degree to which it is reasonable and necessary.

Conforming to data portability obligations does not mean the erasure of the data in question; the Data Controller may retain these data in its database as long as there is a justified purpose or a legal basis for doing so.

4.7 The Right to Accept or Reject Automated individual decision-making, including profiling

The Data Subject shall have the right not to be subject to a decision based solely on automated processing, including profiling, which produces legal effects concerning him or her or similarly significantly affects him or her.

The Data Subject may not request to be exempt from automated decision-making if the decision is necessary for entering into, or performance of, a contract between the Data Subject and the Data Controller; if the decision is authorised by Union or Member State law to which the Data Controller is subject; or if the decision is based on the Data Subject's explicit consent.

If the automated decision-making is necessary for entering into, or performance of, a contract between the Data Subject and the Data Controller or if it is based on the Data Subject's explicit consent, then the Data Subject has the right to obtain human intervention on the part of the Data Controller, to express his or her point of view and to contest the decision.

The Data Controller shall do every reasonable effort during its data processing activities to avoid including special categories of personal data into automated decision-making. If this is not feasible, special categories of personal data can only be involved into automated decision-making processes if this kind data processing is based on the Data Subject's consent or if it is necessary for reasons of substantial public interest, on the basis of Union or Member State law and suitable and specific measures are taken to safeguard the fundamental rights and the interests of the Data Subject.

4.8 The Right to Legal Remedy

4.8.1 The Right to Lodge a Complaint

If the Data Subject believes that the Data Controller's data processing practices violate the provisions of the current data protection laws – with special regard to the provisions of the GDPR – then the Data Subject is entitled to lodge a complaint with the Hungarian National Authority for Data Protection and Freedom of Information.

The contact details of the Hungarian National Authority for Data Protection and Freedom of Information (Nemzeti Adatvédelmi és Információszabadság Hatóság, NAIH):

The Data Subject shall have the right to lodge a complaint with other supervisory authorities as well, in particular in the Member State of his or her habitual residence, place of work or place of the alleged infringement.

4.8.2 The Right to an Effective Judicial Remedy

The Data Subject – regardless of his or her right to lodge a complaint – may seek judicial remedy if the rights provided to him or her by the GDPR have been violated in connection with the processing of his or her personal data.

As the Data Controller is a data processor with a principal place of business in Hungary, judicial remedy may be sought against it in a Hungarian court.

The Data Subject may also initiate a lawsuit in a court or tribunal of his or her place of residence pursuant to Section 22, paragraph (1) of the current Information Law (Act CXII of 2001 on the Right of Informational Self-Determination and on Freedom of Information). The contact details of Hungarian tribunals can be found at the following link: <http://birosag.hu/torvenyszekek>.

Since the Data Controller is not an official authority of one of the Member States, the Data Subject may initiate a lawsuit in the court which has jurisdiction in the Member State where his or her habitual residence is located, if habitual residence is located in a different EU Member State.

4.8.3 Other Options for the Enforcement of Claims

The Data Subject has the right to mandate a not-for-profit body, organization or association which is constituted in accordance with the law of a Member State, has statutory objectives which are in the public interest and is active in the field of the protection of personal data to lodge a complaint on his or her behalf with a supervisory authority and exercise the right to a judicial remedy on behalf of data subjects.

5 Other Provisions

In case the Data Controller has reasonable doubts concerning the identity of the person who lodges a complaint in accordance with sections 4.1 – 4.6 of this Policy, the Data Controller may request further information to verify the personal identity of the Data Subject.

The Data Controller reserves the right to modify this Policy at any time. The Data Controller shall inform the Data Subject of such modifications by publishing the modified document on the website www.aquaworldresort.hu at least 8 days prior to the modifications' entry into force.
